THE HOME AND THE SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the INTERIOR JOURNAL VERSAILLES, Oct. 3.—The enclosed on the "Home and the School," also the ublished Tuesdays and Fridays notice of the Equal Rights Convention, we ask the favor of you to give place $2 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE to in your paper. We feel that there are many broad-minded men and women who are interested in knowing what women are doing in the world for their own advancement. There are many we know also who feel no interest in a subject they consider of no importance and of rather harmful influence. But now that there are no inquisitorial tortures to fear for heretics, no dreaded punishment of witchcraft for women who hold opinions, we venture to solicit the courtesy of the press to publish our convictions. We, of course. do not ask for the endorsement of our 127 pm views-only the hospitality of the press, which so far, has been not only courteous but kindly tolerant.

> Very truly, (Mrs.) SARAH GIBSON HUMPHREYS.

The Kentucky Equal Rights Association will hold its 10th annual State convention in Covington, Oct. 14th and 15th. The morning sessions will be devoted to business. The evenings will be given up to prominent speakers. Note—Noc. 5 and 6 do not run Sundays, 9 and 19 One of the most distinguished of the so no further South than Junction City, netiher National speakers, Mrs. Deboe, will be

There are two social concerns in which women are especially interested, namely: the home and the school. The home has always been woman's especial charge, is believed by many to be her only proper sphere of usefulness. Although one of the chief needs of our time is the development in man of a truer devotion to fatherhood and domestic life, women will always be chief custodians of the home interests, because the mothers of the race stand in most vital connection with child life for the nuture and development of which the home exists. No private home, however, exists by itself. Law determines, in statues relating to marriage, divorce, inheritance, rights of children and property, what persons shall constitute any home. Law determines the layout and sanitary conditions of streets on which the houses containing homes are situated, the water supply, the sewerage, the lighting arrangements and the conditions affecting the health of each separate household. Law determines what sort of police protection the home shall have, whether vicious resorts shall be located near it, whether or not any home shall be a part of a slum, and all MALE HOGS. other exterior ethical influences. That Registered Du- is to say, although the home is the Splendid most retired and personal of all soindividuals Both cial concerns, every smallest and last Fall's and most private household has the outward conditions which affect it determined not by itself alone, but by the united public sentiment of the entire community in which that home is located, and that public sentiment always crysializes at last into law. Can any home-serving woman, afford to be indifferent either to the public senlaw, or to the law itself and its enforcement after it is made? Can she be satisfied without municipal suffrage?

The school, again, is especially women's concern. The mother generally responding period of 1896. decides what school the children shall attend; she talks with the teacher if kindly calls when things are right that operating a gambling house. keep the due connection between the home and the school. She interviews the school committee and the superintendent of schools, discussing puzzling matters, and is more likely than the father to join clubs for the consideration of educational interests. If the of a paper at Corinth died at the St. school chosen is a public one, the Joseph Hospital Monday of typhoid femother is taken directly into the arena of municipal or town affairs. Every detail concerning the school building, the curriculum, the status and duties of the teachers, as well as their selecthorities who are either voted for directly or appointed by those elected at the ballot box. Can, therefore, a home-serving woman, with deep interest in public education, afford to shirk for jailer, engaged in a shooting bee in the duty of choosing proper school officials provided the law allows her to do so? Or can she decline to try and secure the right to do so in those places in which school franchise is not already her recognized possession?

TO BE LET ALONE.

THAT'S ALL BOBBITT WANTS NOW. To the Editor of the INTERIOR JOURNAL.

CRAB ORCHARD, Oct. 6 .- I recently received a communication from the Hustonville end of Lincoln county signed "Many Voters," asking me to become a candidate for representative. In reply I appreciate the honor of the invitation, but should I become a candidate should have to canvass the county which I have not time to do. That I should be pleased to represent the proud old county of Lincoln again, I do not attempt to deny, but I shall have to respectfully decline running this time, being too much engaged to canvass the county and having something else just a little ahead that I shall ask the people for before long. For the present, like Jeff Davis, during the war all I ask is to be let alone.

We don't think there was ever a better prospect for democratic success than now. With all the republican mismanagement and the dissatisfaction about their own ticket, we feel certain that if the democrats will do their duty we need have no fears of the result.
